La Casa Cultural, also known as La Casa, provides a home away from home for many Latine students at Yale. Within the three-story, 19th century redbrick house, students create a sense of community and work with the greater New Haven community on a number of projects. In this Cultural Center, students generate activities and whether they are exchanging food recipes in a fully equipped kitchen, discussing Latine and Latin American issues with one of the many scholars who come to speak at the Center, or just taking a break from their busy schedules to watch TV, students realize the Center's mission as an important gathering place. In addition, students who visit the Center will find a large event space on the first floor, an ever-expanding library of books and resource materials on Latine topics, computers and printers for student use, a furnished conference room, and student organization rooms. Art exhibits, poetry readings, lectures, dance parties, Latine Heritage Month, and various other cultural events are sponsored by La Casa Cultural.
